

Act No. 111 (H.609). Consumer protection; propane

An act relating to terminating propane service

This act defines the term “terminates service” with respect to propane service to mean that a propane seller: (1) disconnects, removes, or locks off that seller’s propane tank, (2) reads a meter with the purpose of terminating service; or (3) takes other action that evidences an intent to terminate a service or knowledge of a consumer’s request to terminate service. The act also modifies the refund provisions of that section so that the amount paid for propane remaining in the tank must be refunded to a consumer within 20 days of terminating service, rather than disconnection of service.
